

Juarez Has Been Most Notorious In the Stormy Mexican History

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Gludad, the scene of the recent momentous meeting between General Obregon, minister of war in the Carranza cabinet, and Major General Scott and Funston, is the subject of today's geography bulletin, issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters, which is signed on the right bank of the Rio Grande, directly opposite El Paso, Texas, and 1,223 miles north of Mexico City.

The very name of the city of Juarez suggests noteworthy events in the history of the Southern republic, and the conferences which have been held there recently by the representatives of the military forces of the American and Mexican governments add another interesting chapter to the community's annals.

For more than 200 years Juarez was known as El Paso del Norte (the pass to the north), and it was not until 1858 that the city was renamed in honor of one of Mexico's greatest statesmen and patriots, Benito Juarez, who established his capital here during the troublous times when Napoleon III of France was abetting the Mexican empire in his effort to found an empire in the western hemisphere.

Here, a full-blooded Zapotec Indian, born in an obscure village near Oaxaca, succeeded to the presidency of Mexico when Comonfort, weary of the internal strife, fled to the United States, leaving the chief justice in the hands of the chief justice. Immediately Juarez was involved in civil war by the assumption of the executive office by Zuloaga, who was trying to displace his rival, the Indian patriot endeavored to borrow money from the United States and, as a part of the bargain, he agreed to a treaty of the terms of which brought forth a storm of protest from England and France. By this treaty, which was never ratified, the United States was to have partial and unrestricted passage through both the isthmus of Tehuantepec and the northern states of Mexico, and the right to employ American troops to enforce these rights as well as to protect American citizens against levies and looting.

A short time later Juarez precipitated an international crisis by his decision to suspend for two years the payment of interest on the national debt.

TRANS-PACIFIC LINE WILL AGAIN FLY THE AMERICAN FLAG SOON

New York, May 16.—At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Pacific Mail Steamship company here today it was expected that an increase in the capital stock would be authorized, making the amount $4,000,000 instead of $1,000,000.

New money is to be provided to pay for three vessels recently purchased by the company.

This insures the restoration of the American flag to the Trans-Pacific service.

The offer has been underwritten, without a commission, by the American International Corporation and W. R. Grace & Co.

The old Pacific Mail Steamship company was in the process of liquidation following the enactment of the La Follette revenue law when Southern Pacific's controlling interest was acquired by the American International Corporation and W. R. Grace & Co.

The five largest vessels had already been sold to the International Mercantile Marine company, but seven smaller vessels, the largest of 7,800 tons displacement, were transferred to the new interests. They own much of the Pacific Mail stock, bought in the open market after the reduction in capitalization from $20,000,000 to $1,000,000, and are understood to own now about 75 per cent of the stock.

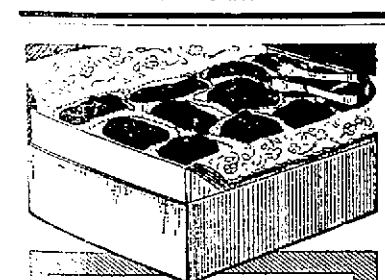

Three new vessels, the Venezuela, Columbia and Ecuador, built in Holland last year, have recently been purchased from the Royal Dutch West India line to be put into service on the Pacific, running from San Francisco to Japan, China, and the Philippines, thus restoring the American flag to trans-Pacific service.

For the twelve months ending with February total earnings of the Pacific Mail were $1,664,536, and profits $371,185, against $271,264 earned last year. G. J. Baldwin, president, says revenues from the Panama line during the ensuing twelve months should exceed the earnings of last year and that the net revenue from the three steamers should exceed the total net revenue for the balance of the fleet in the current fiscal year.

The American International Corporation is thought to own what amounts to a controlling interest in the International Mercantile Marine, having received according to report, 20 per cent of the stock in the open market.

OPEN HEADQUARTERS AT CONVENTION HALL

James B. Reynolds, Secretary of Republican National Committee, Now in Charge at Coliseum.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, May 16.—James B. Reynolds, secretary of the republican national committee, has opened committee headquarters in the Coliseum where the republican national convention will convene June 7. First attention was directed to getting the contests over delegations in shape for presentation to the whole committee which meets here June 1.

The decorations for the hall will be more artistic and elaborate than any in the history of the party, according to plans adopted today. In the past the decorations consisted chiefly of American flags and bunting. This year flags and bunting will only form part of the decorative scheme. The dominating colors will be white and gold. Each thousand yards of white cloth, four thousand yards of gold cloth, 360 flags and shields and 3,000 yards of red, white and blue bunting will be used. The iron trusses which support the roof of the structure will be concealed by large panels of white cloth trimmed with deep flounces of gold cloth.

"The traveler who passes through El Paso on his way to Juarez may choose any of four times by which to set his watch—Central, Mountain, Pacific or Mexican. Central, while it is an hour slower than Central, white Pacific is 24 minutes faster than Mountain.

On account of its bull fights and cock fights, Juarez has long been a city of feast-day pilgrimage for Americans in search of a new sensation. The Spaniards, who became addicted to the bull fight habit in the twelfth century, during the occupation of the Iberian peninsula by the Moors, introduced this sport into Mexico shortly after their overthrow of the Aztecs.

The fights in Juarez are not so elaborately staged as those at Mexico City, for native bulls are used customarily, and these have not the ferocity of the animals imported by the Spaniards from Andalusia, at a cost, frequently, of $1,200 (over $200) each.

"On important bull fight days the population of Juarez rises to 10,000 mark, while there is a relative temporary decrease in the size of the fifth city in Texas—El Paso, which had only 736 people in 1880 but which had grown to more than 39,000 in 1910."

Governor Dunne Puts Problem Before Authorities.—Illinois Has Fund for Improvement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, May 16.—Governor Dunne and most of the Illinois congressmen in a conference with Secretary Baker, asked him to approve plans for an inland waterway to connect Lake Michigan with the Gulf of Mexico.

Governor Dunne told Secretary Baker Illinois had appropriated $500,000 for the canal within its borders. Secretary Baker indicated the project should await congressional legislation regulating waterways and power projects. The state of Wisconsin and the Canadian government had representatives at the hearing to record objections that the canal might divert too much water from Lake Michigan.

WOMEN STAGE A PARADE FOR VOTES AT CAPITAL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Washington, May 16.—A spectacular parade and demonstration were staged this afternoon as women, Congressional Union delegates who have traversed the country on the "Suffrage Special," presented their petitions to congress. The petitions were from the women of the enfranchised states asking suffrage for the entire Union.

Three hundred school girls dressed in white, bearing La Tooez staffs roped together with purple, white and gold streamers, formed a line up the broad, impressive steps of the capitol as the delegates marched in with their petitions. Later, members of the congress mingled with the delegates in front of the capitol in a final demonstration.

Earlier in the day the delegates from the suffrage special trip had made reports. So great had been the effect of the trip and the impression on politicians, delegates said, that they hoped the proposed woman's party, with suffrage its whole plank, would not have to be formed.

MEN FOR VOLUNTEERS.

The critical situation with Germany, not much improved by the recent note, brings right up to the business community the question what it will do to co-operate in the cause of military efficiency. The business man who complains of the lack of this efficiency is often the same one who won't let his employees be absent at encampments.

It is pleasant to note that many business houses now take a broader view. A dry goods store of Boston has just offered ten men a month at camp with full pay and help on transportation and equipment. If that spirit shall prevail generally, Uncle Sam will soon have a force that would cause any aggressive power some serious thinking.

If National Guard officers were asked what is the greatest obstacle they meet, they would be apt to say that it is the difficulty in getting high class men for recruits. Of course there have always been plenty of good men in the force, fellows of mettle, chivalry and patriotism. But this ideal type is none too common.

To the ordinary young man desirous of this training, it has meant he must give up his job. That might cause him a loss of hundreds or thousands of dollars. It is a disproportionate sacrifice to ask.

THE GLASS HOUSES.

There is an old adage that still holds good to the effect that people who live in glass houses should never throw stones. We are about to enter upon a state and national campaign here in Wisconsin and the question as to whether this—a republican state at heart—is to be redeemed from the democratic list, remains to be seen. It is not any time to throw stones at each other in the republican ranks. It is a question of get together and get behind the nominee of the national republican convention in Chicago and elect a republican president, a republican senator and a republican governor, state ticket and state legislature.

The man who is a republican for office and a democrat when he gets down to Washington is doomed to destruction. Congressman Cooper, who represents the first congressional district, has shown that he is not only a republican at heart, but an American in his make-up and by his vote has demonstrated that what was against a war with any power on the face of the globe, he stands for America and the United States. His vote on the tariff is not to be questioned. In the upper house we may question why our republican senator voted with the democrats and what the result is to the farmers of Badgerdom. Jeffris will talk of this issue in his pre-primary senatorial campaign.

In the state we have the old fight of the taxaters and the tax-savers. The taxaters would increase our taxes for sinful waste and perhaps further experiments in the line of the "Wisconsin Idea" while the tax-savers would decrease the taxes as fast as possible and place the state on a business administration. In this line stands Emmanuel Philipp, our governor. He will be a candidate for re-election and his support is only a question as to whether the people have been sufficiently educated that they stand for their best interests or not. However, Philipp is powerless if he is given a hostile state government consisting of a senate and assembly and aided by a hostile set of state officers. It must be a clean sweep from one end of the ticket to the other if we redeem the state. The republican national nominee for president. The republican nominees for congress. M. G. Jeffris for United States senator. E. L. Philipp for governor and a Philipp state ticket and a legislature pledged to support the measures of reforming the reformers, driving the taxaters into their ant-hills. It must be a clean sweep. Are you ready for it?

RENEW FRIENDSHIPS.
The proposed Home Coming week, during the period of the Janesville fair, will give a most excellent opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make many new ones. Janesville has sent her sons and daughters to all parts of the globe to make their homes. Many will plan to return to greet old friends and make new ones. The affair is in charge of a capable committee of the Commercial club who will shortly announce their plans that every citizen may play their own individual part in inviting back old residents. Coming as it does at the same time as the Janesville fair there will be plenty of amusement offered to the visitors and social gatherings, family parties and a general reunion will add to the zest of the assembling of former residents.

There are no friends like the old friends and no matter where you may roam there is always a warm place in your heart for your native city. Janesville will welcome with open arms its former sons and daughters and it is possible that a pageant, depicting some of the early trials and vicissitudes of the pioneers and down to the present day, may be attempted for their enjoyment.

Young men who go wrong, who take what does not belong to them, never stop to think of the consequences to their immediate families. They fail to realize the anguish of their mother who nursed them, who cared for them during their childhood, or their father who has made many a sacrifice in their interests, only to be crushed by the disgrace that has come to them. If they had they would never have done these deeds that will cloud their life.

Janesville is represented down on the Mexican border and across in the Mexican territory by former citizens who are serving under Uncle Sam in the ranks. They are young men who will be able to teach preparedness just as the volunteers of Ninety Eight could preach it if they would look back and remember their experiences. However, down at Washington the word is not in the dictionary and they know not its meaning.

It would be an easy matter for the police department to compel the pool rooms and cigar stores which permit playing by minors to restrict their activities. If cases did the breeding places of crime would be wiped out. We cry "Swat the Fly!" Why not "Swat the pool room and cigar store" that countenance such actions?

Fourth of July! Janesville fair week! Home-coming week! How is that for a list of startling attractions to induce visitors to come to Janesville during the summer of 1916. Then there is the Rock county fair at Evansville and the Beloit fair following, and this is an added inducement to come and enjoy the hospitalities of the city.

The man who planned his garden in March, plowed it in April, is about ready to plant it in May, and then he wonders why the seasons are not as they used to be. Think of the good old times when you planted your garden in March and replanted it in May after the frost had destroyed all your plants?

This is presidential year. Did you stop to think of it? If not, why not look back and remember former campaigns when the torchlight parades held sway and then remember that Janesville is to have just such a one on July 4th. Nineteen Sixteen, that will eclipse any former efforts.

This park project for Janesville is one well worth considering. It is not a chimerical one, but something that can be accomplished and the citizens know it. Well, enough to do lots of things for classes, but why not do something for the masses?

Autoists who violate the state and city ordinances should pay the penalty and not complain. The law is written pretty plain in all the statute books and ignorance of the law is no excuse for violation.

"Yes, Denrod, what is it?" asked the professor, who believed that a child's natural curiosity should never be thwarted.
"What is the difference between a roost and a perch?" asked Denrod.
"A roost is a pole upon which chickens sit at night," replied the professor, while a perch is what chickens perch on."
"And can chickens roost on a perch and perch on a roost?"
"Why yes," said Professor Lilitz, laying down his book on the supercalculus of transubstantiated atomites.
"But if chickens perched on a perch, that would make the roost a perch wouldn't it, papa dear? And if just after some chickens had perched on a roost and made it a roost, then the roost would be a perch and the perch would be a roost and some of the others would be perchers, and—"

THE HICKEYVILLE CLARION

It seems as though a feller never gets enough money to take a vacation until he is too old to enjoy it and would rather stick around home. A woman can wear thin little stockings and low summer shoes all winter and still be comfortable if she has got a $200 set of furs. A good baseball player can make more money than a college professor and have a lot more fun while he is doing it. Uncle Bushrod Peeler, aged 66, is over to our town from West Hickeyville, visiting his grandfather, who is not in a very robust state of health just now, having been knocked senseless by a large log which he was putting on top of a pile the other day. The old man is always glad to see Bushrod as the latter is his favorite grandchild, although he often says he doesn't know as he is bringin' Bushrod up right. Bushrod has got 17 grandchildren of his own. The old man never found out that Bushrod smoked until one day last summer and he was so sore about it that he knocked Bushrod. The old man says kids like Bushrod are mighty unmanageable these days. No member of the Peeler family died a natural death in 13 generations and the old man is afraid Bushrod will learn to smoke cigars. It must be fierce to have so much longevity as the old man has got when the cost of living is so high.

It Was Some Show. Bill Reynolds was full of stories Monday morning about the home talent show they had over at Hubbardston last Friday night, in which Bob Kelly took the part of the villain in such a realistic and natural manner. "In the scene," said Bill, "where the hero is supposed to knock the villain cold a stage was so small that Bob stuck one foot over the footlights, poked a hole in the bass drum and darned near punched an eye out of the orchestra leader in the bargain. But finally with the help of the entire company they managed to double up Bob enough to get the curtain down and allow the show to proceed in a happy and final conclusion. The hero glued his fat cheeks on so tight he couldn't get them off and had to wear 'em home, and when his wife saw him coming through the front door she thought it was Carranza, and let out a yell that brought the neighbors in the house. By the time that things were finally explained they had the hero in the village bastille with darned near half the town standing guard while they tried to get the villain out of the house. But it was some show, some show, concluded Bill as he wiped away another tear.—Pewamo News.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be made at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure. Advertisement.

Attorney General Owen held that these shops were violating the Sunday closing law. JOLLIES SEAT SALE PROMISES BIG HOUSE

Indications Are Lakota Club's Production on Thursday Evening Will Be Greeted By Large Audience.

Seat reservation demands up to noon today at Caldwell's boot shop were indicative of a capacity house Thursday night to greet the Lakota club's "Jollies of 1916." Throughout the morning Mr. Caldwell found it necessary to detail a clerk especially to this work. The big demand for seats today is expected to prove an incentive to the Lakotas to labor even harder than they have done for the past eight weeks to make their production this year eclipse any of their former theatricals and to top all amateur performances of the present season.

A request for reservations for a party of twenty-two was received this morning from Beloit, and a number of other reservation requests from Evansville, Edgerton and Milton and Milton Junction seem to point to a large attendance of out of town people. Mail orders will be filled only if accompanied by check or money order.

Following a full rehearsal in Terpsichorean Hall last evening, C. Mort Phinn, Beloit, director of the production, announced himself as well pleased with the work of the pseudo footlight specialists. The trial went through without a hitch and with two more practices before Thursday evening, one this evening and a full dress rehearsal at the Myers Theatre tomorrow night the "Jollies" troupe will

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Length, seven inches. The only similar sparrow, the white-throat, has a yellow spot in front of eyes.

Range: Breeds in Canada, the mountains of New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana, and thence to the Pacific coast; winters in the southern half of the United States and in northern Mexico.

Habits and economic status: This beautiful sparrow is much more numerous in the western than in the eastern states, where, indeed, it is rather rare. In the East, it is shy and retiring, but it is much bolder and more conspicuous in the far West and there often frequents gardens and parks. Like most of its family it is a seed eater by preference, and insects comprise very little more than 7 per cent of its diet. Caterpillars are the largest item, with some beetles, a few ants and wasps, and some bugs, among which are black olive scales. The great bulk of food, however, consists of weed seeds, which amount to 74 per cent of the whole. In California this bird is accused of eating the buds and blossoms of fruit trees, but buds or blossoms were found in only 30 out of 516 stomachs, and probably it is only under exceptional circumstances that it does any damage in this way. Evidently neither the farmer nor the fruit grower has much to fear from the white-crowned sparrow. The little fruit it eats is mostly wild, and the grain eaten is waste or volunteer.

And the Worst Is Yet To Come

be hitting on all six cylinders when the curtain aviates upon them the evening after tomorrow. And the Lakotas are only hoping and praying that the curtain will be the only thing that does aviate, at least in the direction of the stage.

Three big choruses have been drilling several nights weekly and from the manner in which they pranced last night Zeigfeld could learn several new steps and perhaps pick out a couple of embryo chorus girls to bolster up his 1917 Follies. The Lakotas are doing Zeigfeld one better by advertising their show as the advance model of the "Follies of 1916." The 1916 Follies, you see, will come in 1917, but the Lakotas are several steps ahead with their "Jollies of 1916."

TWIN BEDS IS LAUGH PRODUCER

Big Laugh Festival Produced by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo Draws Big House at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

The scenes of this rollicking farce are laid in a field infinitely rich in humorous possibilities—in brief, in a big apartment house in New York which is so compact that neighborliness is at once horrible to indulge and impossible to avoid.

In one apartment live Harry Hawkins and his bride—he is a modest business man with a domestic desire to soft-pedal on parties, and she a delectable but highly sociable little creature who cannot be prevented from smiling at strangers in the elevators. In the apartment above them Signor and Signora Monti—his $2,000 a night tenor at the Metropolitan, she the Amazon who picked him out of a Brooklyn cabaret and set him up in the world, and then spent her time and energy checking up on his love affairs. In the apartment below the Hawkinses live Amanda and Andrew Larkin—wedded after the first act of the play. He, poor dear, is innocent and faithful—she finds it hard to be true.

He does not require the soul of a prophet to see that once the tenor came home too exhilarated to know one apartment from another and so not only the tenor but the other complications were fit to the playwright's hand. Not a chance for rapid-fire situation was overlooked. Not a pie characterization was omitted. The slangs forthrightness of Signora Monti in keeping her "wop" to the "straight and narrow" and her distress at being pulled one way by her love for him, and the other by her utter exasperation, give play to some of the cleverest lines heard in a farce since "Baby Mine," also Margaret Mayo's play.

Admittedly such a farce as "Twin Beds" requires admirable acting, so Selwyn and Company selected for its presentation here a finely balanced cast, including Juliette Day, P. Paul, Forrest, Maria, Lord, J. Morrill, Morrison, Editha Metcham, William Weston and Eleanor Wilton.

Aside from rather extreme and risque scenes in the last part of the second act, "Twin Beds" would have been most enjoyable all the way through. But the entire audience went away laughing and that is the mission of a farce comedy.

APOLLO ADDS FIVE PIECE ORCHESTRA

Enlarged Musical Accompaniment Makes Picture More Enjoyable.

The Apollo came forth with a five-piece orchestra last evening as an accompaniment for its photoplay. It added no small bit to the complete enjoyment of the picture, constant playing together with it and the musical offering that will be a welcome addition to the Apollo show each day.

The picture yesterday was "The Code of Marcia" with Constance Collier in the title role. It was a play that won ready sympathy. Marcia's code met an unexpected test, not from the usual triangle of two men and a woman, but in what makes one of the strong, human moments in a charming production.

The wonderful personality of Constance Collier makes her part one of universal appeal, her support was quite adequate with Forrest Stanley, Henry De Vere, Herbert Standing and Little Helen Eddy. If there was any one thing overdone it was the close-up. A few less would not have decreased the attractiveness of the picture. The exterior and interior scenes were beautiful and quite all that could be wished for.

What It Looked Like.

In a New Zealand town one of the municipal candidates, a Scotchman, had received a present of a huge Scottish thistle, which at the moment happened to be lying on the table of his committee room. A friend, entering, withdrew suddenly, with the remark, "I beg your pardon; I did not know that you were at luncheon."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Photoplayers must have nerve, but it is not for the faint of heart. Anderson, comedian to perform, one of the most dangerous feats ever undertaken by a screen player, when she worked alone with an eight-year-old lion one day recently. While the camera was rolling, the king of beasts to the rear of the cage four cameramen were trained on the scene from various angles. Then the door was opened, Miss Anderson entered the cage and laid down in the far end. The lion, which had held the lion back were withdrawn. The great beast bounded a few feet, then stood in the center of the stage. Miss Anderson tried to look pleasant, as the lion began to walk slowly and proudly toward her. He reached her side and stood over her then he raised his paw and placed it on her face. She reached her free arm up and placed it almost lovingly about his neck. That was opened and Miss Anderson was almost pulled out before the beast had a chance to realize he had been forced to the rear of the cage and was alone.

WANTED NONE OF THE GENTLE WILD IN HIS.

While directing, William Robert Daly becomes so imbued with the spirit of the emotions he desires his actors to portray he is entirely oblivious of his surroundings. In one production two of the players were supposed to make "goo goo eyes" at a young leopard while fondly stroking it. They were a little bit squeamish about doing it, but to show the players that the animal was perfectly tame Director Daly took it in his arms and began to pet it. Just then he was called away, and, thinking "Bill," the animal trainer, was behind him, he said with a backward glance: "Here, Bill, take the cat." But the arms in which he put the leopard were not those of Bill, but belonged to a big negro. He looked on and then ran, upsetting on his way a dinner table laid for twelve. He jumped through a window carrying part of the glass away with him, and when he got his second wind he gasped, "None of dem dear gentle wild animals in mine."

The William Fox studios at Edendale, Cal., were deluged with telegrams, telephone messages and letters when the report became general that William Fox, William Burr and Willard Mack had been drowned off the Santa Cruz islands, where they were making a new picture. A schooner and three men were lost in a storm, but none of the players were injured.

The great annual run of the Pacific salmon from the sea to shallow head waters of Alaskan rivers will be photographed as a feature of the production of "The Silver Hoard," Rex Beach's novel.

with naturalness and unique humor that captivate the audience. Few musical farces have embodied in them so many beautiful melodies, and together with the best singing and dancing chorus obtainable the attention of the audience is absorbed from the beginning to the end of the performance.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Preparedness as a preventative is the opinion of all the United States. That Germany is America's schoolmaster in the art of war and practical patriotism was the sentiment agreed upon by military men and leaders in preparedness movement.

The lessons teaching how a free democracy can become a great military power, terrible in defense of its liberties are being transmitted, say these men, through the Durborough pictures which the Myers Theatre will present May 19, 21, 23, 25 and Sunday. That they should be seen by every American is a slip in his modern education, which it is to include a realization that war is horrible, and that preparedness is one way to prevent a recurrence of such horrors. "On the Firing Line with the Germans" as taken by Wilbur H. Durborough in the thick of the battle, has been sanctioned and authorized as the only authentic and authoritative film ever to leave Berlin with the Official Stamp of the German Imperial Government.

In viewing these pictures you become entirely absorbed in the stirring realism taken at points no private photographer would have dared to penetrate or would have been permitted to reach it, foolhardy enough to try. These pictures are the first pictures that show a perfect clear view of the soldiers actually fighting and driving the work on the eastern front. The Durborough pictures have a two fold educational value, they present a vivid portrayal of actual scenes and give the layman an understanding of the things our country needs, in order to meet the onslaught of a modern war. Observation and combat aeroplanes, balloons, armored automobiles, collapsible towers and other things in the Durborough pictures make one marvel at the completeness of modern fighting machinery, makes us realize how helpless is our own country.

In witnessing these pictures you are taken into the field into the armored auto trains, which plow all through all obstacles. It is a chance to meet the genial Kaiser and his Imperial family and all the prominent generals, and after you see them reflect on the fact that it is ready to meet an armed enemy.

These pictures reveal war as it really is, not only a conflict of thrills and horrors, but a cold calculating technical business and you can not afford to miss seeing it.

The camera has done things with it that stage could not do and a novel and beautiful picture is the result. It was arranged for the screen by the author.

Big Scenes Furnish Thrills in "The Regeneration."

During the course of the making of the picture "The Regeneration," which is the picturized version of "The Regeneration" Owen Kildare's story of Memmie Rose, and which is being presented by William Fox, it was necessary to take a scene of the burning of an excursion boat. "Skinny the Rat," who was one of the hero worshippers of Owen Kildare, in order to get even with some of his enemies, did so by burning up an excursion boat. All this is perfectly portrayed in "The Regeneration." Director We'ah at great expense, secured an old-fashioned barge and hundreds of heavy characters, men and women, and took the entire party—nearly 800 strong—up to Glen Cove on the East River, where it consumed an entire day to film this one scene at an unusually large cost. It is predicted that this scene will be one of the sensations of this big feature picture.

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it proper for a girl of twenty-three to marry a man six years her senior?

The supposition a couple are serried, should the bride and the groom say "thank you" when being congratulated by each of the wedding party?

(3) What other words than "thank you" can be said when being congratulated?

(4) When an unmarried couple take their meals at a restaurant, who should do the ordering?

(5) Do you think it proper for the minister to congratulate a couple, especially if he is not acquainted? If so, should the couple respond to him in the same way they do to their friends? S. M.

(1) Yes.

(2) They should both thank the ones who congratulate them.

(3) The man is congratulated, the girl is congratulated. He might say "I realize how fortunate I am"; and she, "Thank you, I think I shall be happy."

(4) The man.

(5) Most ministers wish the couple happiness and prosperity. I know of nothing better to say than "Thank you." A minister's good wishes should be appreciated whether he is acquainted with the couple or not.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am the only girl and have one of the most beautiful homes around here, and I love everything in my way. I am young, but have good judgment.

(1) Why do I not have girl friends? I don't think I am hard to get along with. At least I try not to be.

(2) I have been going with a boy whom I have known ever since I was a child. Lately we had a quarrel and and gazed hopelessly at the big holes in the knapsack. She said she had not had to mend for weeks. She said she could not mend stockings. When she showed me the holes, I said, "I can mend a little hole, but when they get as big as a tent piece they make a bunch and hurt Ralph's feet. I simply can't wear a mended stocking for my feet are so tender. I am glad of it, for I have to mend anyway," she added light-heartedly as if she had effectively disposed of the subject.

"What a pity that she does not know how to mend the chief joy of life—the joy of service," said Olive softly.

"I should think that she would want to do things to make it easier for her husband. Can't she see that heels at that abominable hotel are not good for a man working as hard as he is? She does not want to do any work and that settles the whole problem as far as she is concerned. Under if she loves him?" added Nell after a pause.

"Love took up the harp of life, and smote on all the chords with might. He smote the chord of self, which trembled vanished out of sight."

quoted Olive. "I presume she thinks she loves him, but no one really loves unless she desires to serve. She loves his attentions, his devotion. She would be very much aggrieved if he failed in his services to her. They are her rights as wife, but she has only to please herself; she has no responsibilities."

"I remember you said once that in most of the marriages you know of, one did the loving and the other consented to be so treated," laughed Nell.

"What a pity it is, that it is true, when both could be so much happier if both were serving. Poor little helpless girl," she added, "I presume she is the victim of her training. Some mother has wronged her by making her think life demanded nothing of her, by letting her think she was to be ministered unto by everybody," sighed Olive.

RUTH CAMERON

ONE CAUSE OF INDIGESTION.
A doctor was questioning a woman patient who had come to him with a bad case of nervous indigestion.

"Doctor," she said in a burst of frankness, "since I've been married I haven't been able to eat the way I used to, because—well, you know John has a good deal of nervous strain in his business, and he comes home all on edge, and well—he does find so much fault with his meals. Flies out at me if anything is wrong, you know. And when he does that, it simply takes my appetite all away. I don't eat anything and I don't want it. And even when he doesn't complain, I'm so afraid he is going to that I'm nervous and I don't enjoy my food. Really, doctor, I'm not such a bad cook. John is so himself, but he says he's nervous and little things irritate him."

He Blamed Her Indigestion on Her Husband's Fault-Finding.

The doctor who told me this conversation added grimly, "This is a subject for you—the selfishness of the man who spoils his wife's dinner and helps give her nervous indigestion by venting all the pent-up irritation of his day on the behavior of temper if anything about the meal doesn't entirely suit him."

A man who will kick a dog because someone he can't kick has called him down, is one of the meanest creatures living, isn't he?

And yet, does he differ so much from the man who will kick his wife (not in the flesh but in the spirit and that often hurts just as much) when things have gone wrong in the office?

Of Course a Man Has a Right to Expect Some Things.

What about justifiable fault-finding, you may say?

Well, every man has a right to expect his wife to learn to cook the food he provides, nourishingly and palatably. But has he any more reason for demanding a first-class cook than she a first-class provider?

When the cooking is all but a reasonable standard, a man is of course entitled to criticize and ask that his wife try to improve it. But this criticism does not need to be made in an ill-tempered way. And if a man wants to be especially decent, he might wait until after dinner, that is, of course, if the thing isn't something that can be remedied at the time.

No Man Could Work Well Under Such Conditions.

No man could do his work well in the atmosphere of irritable criticism to which many of them subject their wives.

I have often heard employers boast of the fact they use with the office help and sometimes heard these same men find fault with their wives in an utterly tactless way.

What does criticism mean—fault-finding? Not as its primary meaning. It means primarily the act of judging justly of the beauties and faults of a work of art. The definition is suggestive. I know a man who developed his wife into a fine cook without a single irritable word. He criticized in the true sense that is, he encouraged the good and courteously pointed out her mistakes.

Household Hints

STAINS.

When white oilcloth is stained by coffee, try rubbing with common baking soda.

To rub tea stains from cups use common baking soda, rubbing with damp cloth.

Fruit Stains—Pour boiling water through, or use alcohol.

Chocolate or Cocoa—Wash in cold water, then pour boiling water through.

Blood—Soak in cold water or in water with salt. When stain is nearly gone, use soap and water, or starch paste.

Mildew—If fresh, wet in strong soda cover with paste or salt and soap, and put in sun.

Ink—If stain is fresh allow the part stained to stand in milk. For an old stain, wet with cold water, then immerse stained part in diluted solution of oxalic acid; remove, rinse in ammonia water.

To Remove Ink Spots From Clothing—Wet spots with milk (sour is best). Rub a piece of lemon on some salt and rub this on the spots a few times. A few applications will bring required results.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When using flavoring extracts in cake making, put the desired quantity of extract in either the milk or water used in the cake. Thus the flavoring will be equally distributed.

To make a cake cleaning up, place is best accomplished by fastening down each point and soaking for some time in warm, soapy water. Squeeze out and put onto fresh paper, repeating the process until the cake is perfectly clean. Then rinse in clear borax water—four teaspoons to one pint. Place the cheesecloth, lace down, on a flannel or other soft pad, and iron until dry.

THE TABLE.

Luncheon Dish—Quickly prepared, for three people. Put one teaspoon milk in dish over fire. Break three eggs, season with salt and pepper, add milk and mix. Cook in butter. Stir to prevent scorching. As soon as it thickens serve hot with dry toast or wafers. A little cheese may be added if liked.

Mock Duck—Take a round of beef steak (at least two inches thick), lay it flat on meat board, add a good amount of rich bread stuffing, fold it, sew it up, roll in flour, salt a little and lay on two thin slices of salt pork. Bake from one-half to three hours and use a self-baster if possible.

Macaroni Relish—Cook one package macaroni until tender, but do not drain. Add one pound grated cheese, salt, pepper and butter size of a walnut. Add one-half cup hot water and bake until a delicious brown. Mixes a fine casserole dish.

A Fine Cheap Cake—One cup granulated sugar, two-thirds cup of lard, half teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup milk, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, vanilla flavor, 2½ cups flour.

Buttercream—Beat one cup butter, one cup brown sugar, one tablespoon flour, one cup milk, one egg. Beat yolk of egg, stir in flour and milk; mix and put to one side. Put butter in pan and melt; stir into it the brown sugar and four tablespoons milk; cook five minutes. Add first mixture and cook slowly, stirring all the time until thick, then turn into a baked crust. Make a meringue of white of the egg and a little brown sugar.

Quick Stew—Take one pound steak. Pound it full of flour and cut in one-inch squares. Next place one tablespoon lard in pan and brown, then add three large onions, sliced, and three pints water. Let this come to boil and drop about seven large cold boiled potatoes (which have been cut into thin slices) into it. If not thick enough add some flour. Salt to taste. This can be made in twenty minutes and is delicious. Will serve four nicely.

Pineapple Pie—Beat one-half cup butter, one cup sugar and yolks of three eggs to a cream. Add one can of grated or crushed pineapple. Dissolve one tablespoon cornstarch in a cup of sweet cream and add to pineapple. Mix thoroughly. Beat whites of the eggs until stiff and fold in lightly. Have ready a pie tin lined with crust, fill with the mixture and bake in moderate oven.

ADVERTISE.

We've found it pays to advertise. It makes the wheels go round, no business can be there with pep, no business man is sound, who thinks the dollars that he skids at advertising space, is lost to him forever, does not help to boost his place. So patronize your papers, take all space they have to sell, it brings results surprising, it will pay—and pay you well to use the local papers, to come through and advertise, and don't let outside competition use this space—be wise. You want all local business, want the trade right there at home, then get your ads right on the job, don't let the buyers roam. The papers are most anxious to tell what you have for sale, and when folks know you'll sell more stuff, and stocks will not get stale; there'll be more harmony you'll find, your town will whoop 'er up, the buyers learn to shop at home and overflow your cup with joy at drives of business, the old store will daily block, while silver birds of Uncle Sam, right in your midst will swim.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

AIR IS OUR BEST ANTISEPTIC.

In surgery as in many other fields of endeavor there is a marked trend back to nature. After all, it matters not how skillful a surgeon may be nor how impeccable his technique, he is bound to call a consultant to help him in bringing about a good healing. The consultant is old Doctor Nature, Prince of the healing arts, who has been in the world since the beginning of time. He is always resourceful but never entirely reliable unless supervised by intelligence. Nature is a wonderful healer, but she needs the help of the physician. While the healing process is under way, for instance, Nature will heal a broken bone without human aid, but what a hideous deformity results! And Nature will amputate a gangrenous limb successfully—if the patient can endure the prolonged operation.

Back to nature under the eye of a skilled physician—that is the sensible program. If you trust to old Doctor Nature unassisted, you are pretty sure to encounter Disaster sooner or later.

Fresh air is by all odds the most efficient antiseptic known to science. By fresh air we mean ordinary cool, moving air. As an application for an indolent or unclear wound or ulcer or burn it has no peer. But it must be applied in the form of a mixture—equal parts of air and brain. Nature contributes the former; the doctor adds the latter to the formula. A dog or a horse or a wild animal may do fairly well with a wound treated by fresh air alone, for animals have a better "stand in" with Nature than we civilized mortals. Animals do not break so many of Nature's laws as we do.

His tongue—the only thing cleaner than a hound's tooth. A civilized human being had better not try the experiment until he is first convinced his mouth does not harbor disease germs.

If the wound, burn or ulcer can be kept at rest, under a suitable screen to keep off insects and prevent contact with bed-clothing, there is no dressing more comfortable than just room or open air. Excessive discharge promptly diminishes or disappears. Unpleasant odor is soon removed. Pain ceases. Healing proceeds with incredible speed. What air is a more efficient, less irritating antiseptic than any chemical.

How to apply air is a technical problem which only the doctor can solve. Various screens or frames may be constructed to keep everything but air from contact with the open surface. The method has proved a happy one in the great Cook County Hospital, Chicago. It will be widely employed when it becomes better known. It is no more available for self-treatment or for unskilled hands than skin-grafting. It is as simple as skin-grafting, but alas, the simplest things are the hardest to do in surgery.

Doctor Surgically Removes Pin Worms.

A boy of nine, healthy heretofore, began having attacks of abdominal pain, vomiting, rigidity of right lower quadrant, temperature around 102. Appendicitis was diagnosed. At operation the distal of the very long appendix appeared when it became better known. It is no more available for self-treatment or for unskilled hands than skin-grafting. It is as simple as skin-grafting, but alas, the simplest things are the hardest to do in surgery.

HEMORRHAGES CAUSED FROM COMPRESSION AND DEPRESSION OF THE AIR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, May 16.—Hemorrhages resulting from compression and depression of air by the explosion of projectiles have become more common in the French army since the artillery developed its maximum intensity.

In some cases the shock is instantly mortal and in others only temporarily discommoding. Monsieur Leon Binet, interne of the Paris hospitals now aid surgeon in the army, who has made a special study of these cases, finds that the effect of the explosion is to compress the air in the case of a shell from a cannon and to depress it in the case of a projectile from a trench mortar.

In both cases the hemorrhage is pulmonary.

In one case, observed by Monsieur Binet, a projectile from a trench mortar exploded within three yards of a soldier lying on the ground. The man's breathing was instantly obstructed, he began to cough and he spit half a glass full of aerated blood. A half hour later he was all right again. In another case a four-inch shell fired at long distance exploded directly over a cannon. Aerated blood began to flow from the nostrils and mouths of two gunners standing beside the piece and they dropped dead in their tracks. In neither of the two cases reported were there any exterior marks of wounds.

In the first case the effect was from depression, in the second from atmospheric compression.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulled coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

"He slapped the desk resoundingly with his open palm, and then, observing that Bibbs remained in the same impassive attitude, with his eyes still fixed upon the ceiling in a contemplation somewhat plaintive, Sheridan was impelled to groan. 'Oh, Lord!' he said. 'This is the way you always were. I don't believe you understand a darn word I been sayin'. You don't look as if you did. By George! it's discouraging!'

"I don't understand about getting—about getting bigger," said Bibbs, bringing his gaze down to look at his father placidly. "I don't see just what—"

"What?" Sheridan leaned forward, resting his hands upon the desk and staring across it incredulously at his son.

"I don't understand—exactly—what you want it all bigger for?"

"Great God!" shouted Sheridan, and struck the desk a blow with his clenched fist. "A son of mine asks me that! You go out and ask the poorest day laborer you can find! Ask him that question—"

"I did once," Bibbs interrupted. "when I was in the machine shop. I—"

"What'd he say?"

"He said, 'Oh, hell!'" answered Bibbs, mildly.

"Yes, I reckon he would," Sheridan swung away from the desk. "I reckon he certainly would. And I got plenty sympathy with him right now, myself!"

"It's the same answer, then?" Bibbs' voice was serious, almost tremulous.

"Damnation!" Sheridan roared.

"Did you ever hear the word prosperity, you nunny? Did you ever hear the word ambition? Did you ever hear the word progress?"

He flung himself into a chair after the outburst, his big chest surging, his throat tumultuous with guttural interferences. "Now then," he said, looking at Bibbs.

"What'd he say?"

"He said, 'Oh, hell!'" answered Bibbs, mildly.

essays, perhaps. "I see," said his father, breathing quickly with the restraint he was putting upon himself. "That is, you want to write, but you don't want to write anything of any account."

"You think—"

Sheridan got up again. "I take my hat off to the man that can write a good ad," he said, emphatically. "The best writin' talent in this country is right spang in the ad business today. You buy a magazine for good writin'—look on the back of it! Let me tell you I pay money for that kind of writin'. Maybe you think it's easy. Just try it! I've tried it, and I can't do it. I tell you an ad's got to be written so it makes people do the hardest thing in this world for 'em to do: it's got to make 'em give up their money. You talk about 'poems and essays.' I tell you when it comes to the actual skill of puttin' words together so as to make things happen, R. T. Bloss, right here in this city, knows more in a minute than George Waldo Emerson ever knew in his whole life!"

"You—may be—" Bibbs said, indistinctly, the last word smothered in a cough.

"Of course I'm right! And if it ain't just like you to want to take up with the most out-of-date kind of writin' there is! 'Poems and essays.' My Lord, Bibbs, that's women's work! Why, look at Edith! I expect that poem of hers would set a pretty high-water mark for you, young man, and it's the only one she's ever managed to write in her whole life! And Edith's a smart girl; she's got more energy in her little finger than you ever give me a chance to see in your whole body. Bibbs, I'm not sayin' a word against poetry. I wouldn't take ten thousand dollars right now for that poem of Edith's, and poetry's all right enough in its place—but you leave it to the girls. A man's got to do a man's work in this world."

He seated himself in a chair at his son's side and, leaning over, tapped Bibbs confidentially on the knee. "This city's got the greatest future in America, and if my sons behave right by me and by themselves they're going to have a mighty fair share of it—a mighty fair share. I love this town. I love it like I do my own business, and I'd fight for it as quick as I'd fight for my own family. It's a beautiful town. Look at our wholesale district; look at any district you want to; look at the park system we're puttin' through, and the boulevards and the public statuary. And she grows. God! how she grows!"

He had become intensely grave; he spoke with solemnity. "Now, Bibbs, I can't take any of it—nor any gold or silver nor buildings nor bonds—away with me in my shroud when I have to go. But I want to leave my share in it to my boys. I've worked for it; I've been a builder and a maker; and two blades of grass have grown where one grew before, whenever I laid my hand on the ground and willed 'em to grow. I've built big, and I want the buildin' to go on. And when my last hour comes I want to know that my boys are ready to take charge. Bibbs, when I'm up above I want to know that the big share I've made mine, here below, is growin' bigger and bigger in the charge of my boys."

He leaned back, deeply moved. "There!" he said, huskily. "I've never spoken more what was in my heart in my life. I do it because I want you to understand—and not think me a mean father. I never had to talk that way to Jim and Roscoe. They understood without any talk. Bibbs."

"I see," said Bibbs. "At least I think I do. But—"

"Wait a minute!" Sheridan raised his hand. "If you see the least bit in the world, then you understand what it meant to start one of my boys and have him come back on me the way you did, and have to be sent to a sanitarium because he couldn't stand work. Now, let's get right down to it, Bibbs. I've had a whole lot of talk with ole Doc Gurney about you, one time and another, and I reckon I understand your case just about as well as he does, anyway."

"Now, why did work make you sick instead of brace you up and make a man of you the way it ought of done? I pinned ole Gurney down to it. I says, 'Look here, ain't it really because he just plain hated it?' 'Yes,' he says, 'that's it. If he'd enjoyed it, it wouldn't 'a' hurt him.' And that's about the way it is."

"Yes," said Bibbs, "that's about the way it is."

"Well, then, I reckon it's up to me not only to make you do it, but to make you like it!"

Bibbs shivered. And he turned upon his father a look that was almost ghostly. "I can't," he said, in a low voice. "I can't."

"Can't go back to the shop?"

"No. Can't like it. I can't."

Sheridan jumped up, his patience gone. To his own view, he had reasoned exhaustively. He had explained fully and had pleaded more than a father should, only to be met in the end with the unreasoning and mysterious stubbornness which had been Bibbs' baffling characteristic from childhood. "By George, you will!" he cried.

"You'll go back there and you'll like it! Gurney says it won't hurt you if you like it, and he says it'll kill you if you go back and hate it; so it looks as if it was about up to you not to hate it. Well, Gurney's a fool! Hatin' work doesn't kill anybody; and this isn't goin' to kill you, whether you hate it or not. I've never made a mistake in a serious matter in my life, and it wasn't a mistake my sendin' you there in the first place. And I'm goin' to prove it—I'm goin' to send you back there and vindicate my judgment. Gurney says it's all 'mental attitude.' Well, you're goin' to learn the right one! He says in a couple of more months this fool thing that's been the matter with you'll be disappeared completely and you'll be back in as good or better condition than you were before you ever went into the shop. And right then is when you begin over—right in that same shop! Nobody can call me a hard man or a mean father. I do the best I can for my children, and I take the full responsibility for bringin' my sons up to be men. Now, so far, I've failed with you. But I'm not goin' to keep on failin'. I never tackled a job yet I didn't put through, and I'm not goin' to begin with my own son. I'm goin' to make a man of you. By God! I am!"

Bibbs rose and went slowly to the door, where he turned. "You say you give me a couple of months?" he said. Sheridan pushed a bell-button on his desk. "Gurney said two months more would put you back where you were. You go home and begin to get yourself in the right 'mental attitude' before those two months are up! Good-by!"

"Good-by, sir," said Bibbs, meekly.

CHAPTER IX.

Bibbs' room, that neat apartment for transients to which the "laminal" George had shown him upon his return, still bore the appearance of temporary quarters, possibly because Bibbs had no clear conception of himself as a permanent incumbent. However, he had set upon the mantelpiece the two photographs that he owned; one, a "group" twenty years old—his father and mother, with Jim and Roscoe as boys—and the other a "cabinet" of Edith at sixteen. And upon a table were the books he had taken from his trunk: Sartor Resartus, Virginia Woolf, Proust, Huysmans, Flaubert, and others. There were some other books in the trunk—a large one, which remained unremoved at the foot of the bed, adding to the general impression of transiency. It contained nearly all the possessions as well as the secret

"I wish, John, that I'd had more sense when we were engaged," said the wife thoughtfully. "Then I wouldn't have destroyed all the letters you wrote to me in the eighteen months of our courtship."

life of Miss Sheridan, and Miss Sheridan, the day after his interview with his father, taking over a small collection of manuscripts in the top tray. Some of these he glanced through dubiously, finding little comfort in them; but one made him smile. Then he shook his head ruefully indeed, and ruefully began to read it. It was written on paper stamped "Hood Sanitarium," and it bore the title, "Leisure."

For a profession adapted solely to the pursuit of happiness in thinking, I would choose that of an invalid; his money is time, and he may spend it on Olympus. The world must be on the other side of the wall, and the wall must be so thick and so high that he cannot hear the roaring of the furnace fires and the screaming of the whistles. Peace—

Having read so far as the word "peace," Bibbs suffered an interruption interesting as a coincidence of contrast. High voices sounded in the hall just outside his door; and it became evident that a woman's quarrel was in progress, the parties to it having begun in Edith's room, and continuing it vehemently as they came out into the hall.

"Yes, you better go home!" Bibbs heard his sister vociferating shrilly. "You better go home and keep your mind a little more on your husband!"

"Edie, Edie!" he heard his mother remonstrating, as peacemaker.

"You see here!" This was Sibyl, and her voice was both acrid and tremulous. "Don't you talk to me that way! I came here to tell Mother Sheridan what I'd heard, and to let her tell Father Sheridan if she thought she ought to, and I did it for your own good."

"Yes, you did!" And Edith's gibing laughter tooted loudly. "Yes, you did! You didn't have any other reason! On no! You don't want to break it up between Bobby Lamhorne and me because—"

"Edie, Edie! Now, now!"

"Oh, hush up, mamma! I'd like to know if he oughtn't to come here, what about his not going to her house. How—"

"I've explained that to Mother Sheridan," Sibyl's voice indicated that she was descending the stairs. "Married people are not the same. Some things that should be shielded from a young girl—"

This seemed to have no very soothing effect upon Edith. "Shielded from a young girl!" she shrieked. "You seem pretty willing to be the shield! You look out Roscoe doesn't notice what kind of a shield you are!"

Sibyl's answer was inaudible, but Mrs. Sheridan's hurried attempts at pacification were renewed.

"Oh, hush up, mamma, and let me alone! If you dare tell papa—"

"Well, we'll see. You just come back in your own room and we'll—"

Money Couldn't Buy It

The relief he personally experienced moved Mr. W. F. Briggs, Konawa, Okla., to write to the Pinus laboratories a letter of appreciation in which he says:

"Fruitola and Traxo helped me so much I am advising all who suffer with gallstones to try them. Money wouldn't buy what this medicine has done for me."

Fruitola is an intestinal lubricant that softens the congested masses disintegrate the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expels the accumulated waste to the intense relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day to restore the system that has been weakened by constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Janesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker, 123 West Milwaukee St.

CANADA RECRUITS WITH ADVERTISING

Big Posters at Gazette Library Show Means Taken by Dominion Government to Get Soldiers.

While Janesville people just this week have been awakened to the fact that the United States is conducting an extensive advertising campaign to secure recruits for the various branches of the army and navy, the efforts of the belligerent nations to secure men by similar methods is interesting.

Advertising campaigns, the extent of which would cover the United States from coast to coast and from border to gulf, on every signboard, fence and rock, are now being conducted by practically every country with a finger in the battle. The most particular interest are the big photograph posters received recently from Canada by City Engineer C. V. Korch. Bright colored and gay they depict the scenes of battle, glory and sacrifice. Short and terse phrases with the illustrations are expected to do their share in the advertising scheme.

Mr. Korch has loaned the lithographs to the Gazette. They are too large to be hung in the office windows, but today were hung in the Gazette library. Any persons wishing to view these posters are cordially invited to do so. They are to be at the Gazette for several days.

Mr. Korch sent the posters to one of Janesville's public institutions several days ago. The intention was to know whether it would be of more interest or of more offense to the majority of local people who daily visit this place, and rather than give an impression of praiseworthy publicity, it might be best to adhere strictly to President Wilson's plea for impartial neutrality.

The posters have been hung in the Gazette library to permit Janesville people to see just how the Dominion is securing recruits to uphold the cause of the allies in Europe.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question—Lice are on my rose bushes. What shall I do for them?

Answer—Plant lice do their injury by sucking and there are two ways to combat sucking insects, one by suffocation with insect powder or tobacco dust and the other an oil, a soap or a tobacco spray. Of these, the sprays are likely to work best for roses.

Whole oil soap (one pound in six to eight gallons of water) will kill all lice that are wet with the spray, but it is difficult to hit them all with one spray, so it is usually necessary to repeat the dose several times during the season. Doubleday Page's rosebook says that if strong water pressure is available one can often master all the serious enemies of the garden-rosebush with the hose and a coarse spray nozzle, by simply knocking off the insects every few days. Some good housewives who love their gardens make it a practice to drench their rose bushes with soap suds on wash day. This no doubt answers a double purpose of washing off the insects and killing with the strong soap suds. To make this effective it should be done at least weekly, and if the plants are already infested, it may not prove effective. Probably the better way would be to use the whole oil soap suds and then follow it with the suds of the weekly wash.

Roses are subject to many pests. Probably the most in this section are the rose slugs which are on the under side of the leaf and which skeletonize the leaves, disfiguring the foliage very badly. For this pest a decoction made of one tablespoon of white hellebore to two gallons of boiling water applied when cool with a whisk broom is most effective, if care is taken to reach the under side of the leaves with the decoction. One thorough application will usually suffice, and if one had slugs or beetles, slugs, aphids or green fly, leaf hoppers and plant lice, roses are attacked by many diseases so that constant vigilance is the price of fine roses. A spraying calendar for roses will be given if called for.

A rose book is issued by Doubleday

Page & Company, which in time chapters gives directions as to growing roses and caring for them.

CORN PLANTING.

To the boys of the Acre Corn Growing Contest: Corn planting time is at hand. The old rule which our New England ancestors learned of the Indians to plant corn when the leaves on the oak were the size of squirrels' ears is applicable to Wisconsin. It is to be hoped that the seed bed is ready and the corn tested. If so the next thing is to shell and grade the corn for planting.

Shell corn by hand, each ear by itself, discarding the small and irregular kernels at the tips of the ears and the large irregular ones of the butts. The grain should be spread out thinly and examined for kernels damaged by mold, or broken or otherwise injured. A set of screens may then be used for grading the corn so as to have the kernels of uniform size together.

Testing the Planter.

The next step lies in testing the planter, finding the set of planter plates that will drop the required kernels at least ninety-five times out of one hundred. The planter should be tested before going into the field by setting up in a convenient place and running through samples with different plates until a pair is found that will drop the desired number, if possible. It may be necessary to file the notches in order to have them do the work satisfactorily.

All this work may be done on rainy days, so that when the time comes for planting everything will be ready. Shall Corn Be Check Rowed or Drilled? Whether the corn is to be drilled or check rowed depends on conditions and calls for good judgment.

If the soil is good and free from weeds the corn may be drilled in rows three feet six inches apart, the kernels about a foot apart in the row. Many claim that this allows for better development of each stalk than the planting of three kernels in a hill three feet six inches each way. However, both these methods were used last year by the contest boys with no practical difference in the results so far as could be determined. The depth of planting is important. This year we have had an abundance of rain and the corn may be planted shallow, not over an inch deep, four kernels to a hill if checked rowed.

If too deep it may not germinate as well. The mistake of too deep planting was made by some last year, resulting in poorer stands and later yields.

OLD GUARD OF HONOR AT MONTE CARLO HAS ENLISTED FOR WAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Monte Carlo, May 16.—The old Guard of Honor of the Prince of Monaco, four officers and eighty-two men, which constituted the military force of the principality in pre-war times, has disappeared since the European war began, for the whole gendarmie of Monaco was recruited from abroad, and the members were all either Frenchmen or Italians. They have now been called to the colors of their respective countries, so that neutral Monaco found itself without adequate protection. Then the people volunteered for service, but to prove their independence as well as their dislike for militarism, they wear no uniform, merely their ordinary civilian costume and a red-and-white woolen armband.

In front of the main entrance to the palace stands a sentry, a 16-year-old boy, leaning on an old pattern rifle, its fixed bayonet towering several feet above his head. He is dressed in a nondescript tweed suit, very baggy at the knees, and wears no cartridge belt, merely the red-and-white armband. Yet Monaco is not entirely neutral. Many of the youth have entered the

LOW INFANT MORTALITY RATE FOR LA CROSSE; STATE'S SHOWING GOOD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 16.—Four cities of the United States under 50,000 population which reported their 1915 mortality statistics, La Crosse, Wis., came through with the lowest infant mortality rate. There were 64 cases in this list. The La Crosse rate was 30.6 deaths were 1,000 babies. La Crosse is one of the few cities in Wisconsin employing a full time health officer. In La Crosse, the credit for this unusual record of human conservation is generally fixed upon the health commissioner.

The infant mortality rate for four other Wisconsin cities are also given: Milwaukee, 94.4; Racine, 76.6; Oshkosh, 62.1; Madison, 55.1.

In comparison with these Wisconsin figures infant deaths, many cities in other states show appalling baby losses. Montgomery, Ala., had the highest rate last year, 185.1 deaths per 1,000 births.

Of 241 large cities through the country reporting to the New York milk committee, which sent out inquiries to health officers, the city of Madison, Wis., after Seattle, Wash., had the lowest general death rate. Seattle's was 27.44, and Madison's 23.3. The general death rate for Milwaukee last year was 11.72; Oshkosh, 10.3; Racine, 10.94; La Crosse, 8.2. The highest was held by New Orleans, La., and Trenton, N. J., with 20.5 each.

The foregoing figures are from the reports of the local health officer.

"No community," says the New York committee, "with an infant mortality of over 50 per 1,000 births, can claim that its babies are getting a square deal."

THE INDIAN RUPEE IS MADE LEGAL TENDER IN EGYPT BY GOVERNMENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cairo, Egypt, April 16.—The Indian rupee has just been made legal tender in Egypt, and large quantities of the coins have been brought into circulation.

There has for some time been a shortage of silver and other change in Egypt owing to the great influx of troops. A considerable quantity of newly minted Egyptian coin was brought from England last year, but it proved insufficient to meet the local demand. Some of the consignments brought from England were lost at sea, and since it would take some time to replace them, the Egyptian government decided for a time at least to use the Indian rupees, large quantities of which are available. The innovation is only a provisional one until sufficient new coin can be minted in England and sent out.

PREPARATIONS FOR CONVENTION OF DEMOCRATS BEING MADE IN ST. LOUIS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Louis, May 16.—Preparations for the Democratic national convention, which will be called to order here June 14, were in full swing today. The police department was preparing a schedule for the police, firemen and detectives to be followed during the stay of the delegates. Hundreds of extra policemen will be sworn in for special duty during the Democratic meeting.

The Boy Scout troops will do their share of work and most likely will be used for ushers in the Coliseum, where the convention will be held.

Other youngsters will act as guides to visitors.

The civic organizations of the city were busy getting out literature which will aid the delegates and their families in locating the city's points of interest.

Work on the preparation of the Coliseum will begin in a few days. Manager Robinson said. Hundreds of special seats in addition to the platform and arrangements for the press representatives will be arranged.

MADISON JUDGE STUDIES METHODS IN OTHER COURTS

Madison, Wis., May 16.—A. C. Hoppmann, newly elected judge of the municipal court, who will take office next January, has been making a thorough study of the work of municipal court judges in western cities in preparation for taking up his new duties.

He sat with the municipal judges of Minneapolis and St. Paul for several days and expects to go to Milwaukee and Chicago within the next few weeks to study methods used there.

Hoppmann will also visit all of the penal institutions in the state to which he will sentence prisoners. He expects to make a specialty of probation work while in office here.

This Six-40 Seven-Passenger Chalmers—$1450 Detroit

$9,000,000 of these Six-40 Chalmers have been bought by persons who had intended paying $2,000 for a car

They took one look; were surprised a car of such size could be obtained for the money; drove around 10 miles in her—and bought.

They laid down the astonishingly small sum of $1450 plus the freight, and mentally noted a saving of $550.

For the men who are driving the Six-40 Chalmers today are the kind who have been thinking motor cars in terms of $2,000.

They have had more surprises than the price, too. They have found the Six-40 Chalmers to possess more room than any seven-passenger car of the day under $2500.

Most persons are pretty particular about room. I do not know just how to express the ROOM in this car.

Dimensions in inches do not tell the story. I simply spell the word in capital letters. Then you find later I have understated the case.

Surprise No. 3 that will stir your emotions is the great big subject of color options.

Now in these days when most cars resemble hearse in their soberness, or the "back drop" in a new musical comedy in their color excitement, here comes something refreshing.

You can get a Six-40 Chalmers in any of these colors:

Oriford maroon or Valentine green with hoods to match.

Meteor blue with black hood.

Just think that over. And remember this is the only car under $2,000, so far as I have ever learned, that provides for you a color range like this.

Colors are getting just a little more important every day. I find most men, and particularly most women, have their own ideas about color—just like the decorations in a library or a living room.

Now there's one more big item about the Six-40 Chalmers. It's too bad I can't set that down as Surprise No. 4.

Some secrets cannot be kept. Nearly everyone knows what a fine beast she is on the road. She certainly can perform.

They know that her real name is Six-40 Performance Chalmers.

She has a reputation on a hill like Caesar had with his armies.

She has a reputation for responsiveness that every traffic cop in America is well aware of.

She has, like a great baseball pitcher, "everything on the ball." She is good at low speeds, good at high speeds, good on the hill, good on the long march, good on the short haul.

She's a fine animal. As fine as any you'll ever run across in 10 parasangs.

I drive her myself. She's my preference. But the big thing, of course, is that men with clear minds and rare judgment have laid down $9,000,000 on her. If you are wise you'll never question success—a success like the Six-40 Chalmers.

Ask me about Chalmers service inspection coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

CUBS' BOOTS WINS GAME FOR NEW YORK

Errors Behind, Hippo Vaughn Allow Giants to Win Sixth Straight Game.—Walsh Wants to Pitch.

The Giants scored their sixth straight victory and will soon be moving from the cellar of the National league, as they trimmed the Cubs at Chicago Monday by the score of three to two. The Giants' tallies were all directly due to errors and the Cubs displayed a costly habit of falling down on plays when runs were streaming across the pan.

Hippo Vaughn and Perrit were the slab rivals and the Cub hurler pitched shut-out ball, but for the boots made by his backer, Mulligan, the erratic Cub shortstop, was again put into the line-up after Manager Tinker benched himself, and his wild throw to first in the late rounds let in the winning run. Ed. Walsh, master hurler of the good old Sox days, has asked for a chance to halt the slipping Sox and may be sent to the mound against the Maeks at Philadelphia. Walsh pitched in an exhibition game Sunday and pulled through in great style, so wants to have a chance at a league game. If he falls down he asked to be released and if he shows winning form, the big mouse desires to become a regular on the Sox pitching roster. Buck Weaver will not be able to fill his position in the field for four or five days, as his left arm is sore from a lgt received in the last Yankee game. Jim Scott has recovered from his illness and will pitch against Boston on Wednesday according to the schedule, having been against the champs today.

Cleveland made it two straight from the Yankees yesterday when they drove Cliff Markle from the mound, and won 6 to 4. This is the first game that Markle has lost since he came to the Yanks last September.

Eddie Plank pitched against his former team-mates for the first time at Philadelphia yesterday and the Maeks beat him, St. Louis losing, 5 to 4.

In all games in the two major leagues, close games figured, the biggest winning margin in seven games being three runs.

TWO AMATEUR TEAMS PLAY AN EXCITING BALL GAME

The Janesville White Sox added another victory to their list when they defeated the strong Rock Hill nine by a score of 16 to 5. The White Sox knocked four pitchers out of the box. These two teams will play a game at the end of the week on Rock Hill's diamond. W. Anderson pitched the whole game for the Sox.

"CAN" CHAMP WELSH FROM BADGER RINGS

Suspension Handed Out to Title Holder Also Effective in New York.—Prove Rule Violations.

Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, is barred from Wisconsin rings for the next four months. This suspension was hung on Hot Foot Freddie by the state athletic commission on Monday for violating several rules of the commission in connection with his bout here on April 24 with Ever Hammer.

Freddie was found guilty of breaking the rule requiring the wind-up boxers to get in the ring at 10 o'clock, of violating the commission's edict that all boxers must sign contracts and file them with the commission and of keeping the spectators waiting for half an hour after being ordered to get in the ring by the commission's inspectors. The commission also voted to reprimand Harry Pollock, Welsh's manager, for slushing water over a dozen or more spectators sitting near Freddie's corner. The charge that Welsh used an alcoholic stimulant between rounds was not sustained by the commission.

OPENING TRAP TOURNAMENT AT EMPORIA, KANSAS, TODAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Chicago, May 15.—While the wave of preparedness is sweeping the United States today, thousands of trapshooters are perfecting their aim to be ready in case President Wilson calls for help. At the same time they were having sport by engaging in trap shooting meets. The first one is at Emporia, Kansas, today.

Trap shooting in the United States this year is more spirited than ever. The military fever has brought out a bunch of rookie shooters and indications are before the season is over fully 1,000 tournaments of various sizes and descriptions will have been held.

Thirty-six of forty-three states now having organizations represented in the interstate association have planned championship tournaments, some of which have already been held. Arkansas, Delaware, Arizona, Montana, Virginia, South Dakota and South Carolina have not arranged for state tournaments, but the interstate authorities are urging them to do so.

More than 250 shoots have been listed for the Panama Canal zone and when all the meets for Cuba and Porto Rico are registered it is expected that fully 500 tournaments will be held in the islands and the canal zone. Last year 335 meets were held.

HAMMER SCORES WIN OVER FREAK FIGHTER

Chicago Sluger Pounds Bitter Root Kid So Badly Referee Stops Bout in Seventh Round.

Ever Hammer, the terrible Swede from Chicago, gave the Bitter Root Kid so bad a thrashing in a bout at Kenosha last night, that the bout was stopped in the seventh round. Hammer scoring a technical knockout. The bout was more of a snake dance than a ring event, for the Bitter Root Kid refused to open up to the attack of the blonde terror, who gave Freddie Welsh the worst trimming of his checkered career.

In the early rounds Hammer was unable to penetrate the defense of the B. R. Kid, as the Montana boxer covered up in a shell. Playing for the boy Hammer soon had his opponent in distress and in the seventh round scored so many hard lefts that the bout was ended.

Sunburst Dolan, the southern flash, stopped Frankie Martin in the fourth round and Henderson beat George Adams in eight rounds at the Kenosha exhibition.

In St. Louis Sailor Jerabek won a decision over Jack Covance, bout at Bridgeport, Conn. George Chip, ex-middleweight title holder, knocked out a sailor Grande in the fourteenth round.

MORRIS MILLER

The state of Manager Bill Carrigan's pitching staff, reputed to be the best in the American league, is indicated by his efforts to land something to brace it. For instance, in one of the have offered Bugs O'Connor, the Manhattan college star, a fat bonus to join them at once. O'Connor has been the mainstay of his college team for four years. He is not only a high school pitcher, but owns a regular Triple A batting average in college circles.

After losing a big bunch of games Manager Jones of the St. Louis Browns concluded it was about time to figure so Charley Barrett, who was dismissed when the new owners took hold of the St. Louis club last winter, was re-engaged and told to get busy. Barrett's main job will be to keep tab on the players the Browns have farmed out in the minors, though of course, he will also pick up a few hitherto unheard of phenoms as usual.

Crafty Clarence Rowland is pulling the trick of not picking his line-up until he knows what the opposition will offer. For instance, in one of the White Sox-Browns games Rowland gave his lineup as including Scott as catcher and Benz right field. Then Fielder Jones announced his battery Rowland and withdrew Scott and Benz and substituted Lapp and Murphy. From the way Eddie Murphy played ball in that particular game the White Sox manager would have done as well by leaving Benz in.

They all come back. Del Gainer, who "retired" a month or so ago to devote his valuable time to business, met Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox in Washington and announced that he wanted to return to baseball. Carrigan had planned to secure George Burns from Detroit to alternate with Hobitzel at first, but Gainer's decision caused him to pass the tiger.

Captain Till Huston of the New York Yankees advocates starting the major league's season about April 26 and winding up at the usual time in October, cramming the games in the shorter season by playing double-headers. Captain Till, we opine, has something to learn about baseball in addition to sizing up minor league players.

New York writers who assert that Olaf Henriksen's batting has "surprised the Red Sox" are off the mark. Ball players, and especially the Red Sox, consider "Henny" the best batsman in either major league. If he could throw, there would never be any question of his status as a regular with any team, says a Boston critic.

A Washington critic says that Sam Agnew is not hitting "as he used to do for the Browns." Is that so? Well, the Washington critic should get a Record Book and see what Sam hit for the Browns last year.

Pitcher George Dumont of the Washington team is now a real big leaguer—he has had his tonsils removed.

Sam Crane has failed as a short-stop with Connie Mack, temporarily. He has been turned over to Baltimore for development, along with Pitcher Morrisette.

The Chicago Cubs have rid themselves of Pitcher Ad Brennan again. The former Philly and Fed has been transferred to Atlanta in the Southern league, which is the haven of a number of ex-Peds.

There is a disposition to blame Rowland for the poor showing of the White Sox, but Comiskey insists that his manager is not to blame for the poor work of his ball players. Rowland is hustling and displaying good judgment in the handling of his team, according to Comiskey, and in due time he predicts the Sox will begin to regain their form and fight it out for the pennant.

The Names Given Below are Janesville People Who Have Been Benefited By CAS-KA. Start Today and Try CAS-KA a Week Free.

Last Day SATURDAY JUNE 17th

Your Last Day To Get a Bottle for 35 cents or Three for One Dollar. 3,000 Janesville Citizens are Trying It!

CAS-KA

NO WHISKEY OR ALCOHOL IN CAS-KA.

A. F. Watson, proprietor of the East Side Hitch Barn on Bluff street says "I have had a number of people tell me how CAS-KA had helped them, so I got a bottle and I can say that I am not surprised if it helps every one as it has me. For the past year I have had to get up three or four times a night from weak kidneys. CAS-KA has not only helped me for that trouble, I also had a touch of rheumatism; it has helped also."

F. Coughlin of the meat market firm of Coughlin and Co., at 22 North Main street, says: "I have taken everything I heard of for catarrh of the stomach. There has not been a day in two years that I did not vomit after breakfast until lately, and will say that when I started to take CAS-KA five weeks ago I had no confidence in it. I am now on the second bottle and it has stopped the vomiting and has cured that dull pain I had between eyes. I am recommending it to my friends, that is, I tell them what it has done for me and I know of several that have bought some."

James Shikanyanski in shipping department of Rock River Cotton Co., lives at 1238 Racine St. CAS-KA has helped me for backache, and kidney trouble and my wife for sick headache. I thought at first we would have to stop taking it as it moved the bowels too freely. But we took smaller doses and it now acts all right. We feel better than we have in years."

These are only a few of many that you can talk with if you come to the drug store any day this month.

W. C. Bernard, a well known farmer, lives in Harmony township; I have taken one bottle of this CAS-KA and the first week it helped my stomach (indigestion) and for my rheumatism. I don't know if CAS-KA is doing it or not, I know my rheumatism does not bother me like it did three weeks ago. I went to Baker's Drug Store and got another bottle today. I am going to get six more bottles before the price goes up to $1.00 per bottle.

G. H. Cleveland, formerly with the grocery firm of Ryan and Crowley, 25 So. Main St., says: "I have a relative, my wife's father, who has been taking CAS-KA and you can say that it's all right, although the first bottle he took didn't seem to help him much, but when we had those cold rains, like we had 10 days ago, he, as a rule, is laid up when those rains come on. But this time he hardly noticed them. He has spent hundreds of dollars for his rheumatism. He is now on his 2nd bottle."

J. C. Hovland, 110 Rock street, employee of Nichols Harness Mfg. Co., says: "Yes, Cas-Ka has helped my wife for rheumatism and I was feeling all run down and will say it has helped us both. For the bowels it is the best ever taken. It does not gripe. We have taken two bottles."

Robert Krahmer, 1020 McKee Blvd., "I will say that I was surprised to have any medicine help me like Cas-Ka. I was bothered with rheumatism and kidney trouble and if the next bottle does me as much good as the first I will feel that I am cured. Mr. Krahmer gave this testimony in March, six weeks ago. Ask him today about CAS-KA."

G. L. Sharp, formerly with the West Side Hitch Barn, Franklin St., says: "Any person will see what Cas-Ka has done for him for pimples on the face that knew him one month ago. Also he was bothered with his stomach, having that distress and bloating after eating which does not bother him any more."

H. F. Husser, 120 South Franklin St., with the Lichtfus Coal & Wood Co., says: "Yes; Cas-Ka has been the only thing I ever took that helped my rheumatism and I have tried everything I ever heard of for the past three years. I have bought five bottles. My wife has taken one for the kidneys and backache. It has helped her also. Also I am going to get more before the price goes up to one dollar a bottle. We have never felt so well in years as now."

GO TALK WITH THESE PEOPLE

We Gave CAS-KA to From 300 to 500 People Every Day for the Past Two Months,

FREE OF CHARGE TO TEST IT

If you are so situated that you cannot come twice a day to try CAS-KA free, you can get one of the $1.00 bottles for thirty-five cents, and if you don't notice any benefit for Catarrh or Rheumatism, take the bottle back and get your money. And in ten days, if we don't relieve your Stomach or Liver Trouble, we refund your money.

Sick Headache, Female Weakness or getting up nights, caused by Weak Kidneys, relieved in four or five days. You can use part or the entire bottle as a test. Now, you don't even have to spend thirty-five cents to find this is true, as you can come and try it FREE until Saturday, June 17th.

CAS-KA does these things by making the blood pure. Call and talk with some of the people buying CAS-KA.
